Malignant Lymphomas Other than Hodgkin's Disease Karl Lennert, 2012-12-06 A G STANSFELD and J A M VAN UNNIK In joint discussions in 1974 the Club worked out a new terminology that was acceptable to all members and will hopefully be acceptable to other pathologists Since then it has been called the Kiel Classification We are also pleased that the clinicians belonging to the Kiel Lymphoma Study Group foremost A STACHER and G BRITTINGER have been able to present preliminary data on the clinical relevance of the new classification Finally our optimism was fortified by the findings of R J LUKES and R D COLLINS which largely concur with ours in both concept and practical significance This book is divided into six main sections First there is a chapter on normal cytology that supplements and in some respects revises the presentation given in Part A of this Handbook 1961 H K MULLER HERMELINK played a major role in the writing of the first chapter The second chapter is a brief description of the light microscopic techniques that are used in our laboratories and have proved to be suitable for a precise diagnosis of lymph node diseases

Immunological Aspects of Cancer J.E. Castro, 2012-12-06 An immunological approach to the treatment of cancer has many theoretical features to commend it There should be specificity so that tumour cells alone are destroyed whilst normal tissues are unaffected Provided the tumour is uniform and all of the cells have appropriate antigens every malignant cell should be destroyed and even distant metastases dealt with So far these speculative advantages are unfulfilled and the initial optimism that surrounded immunotherapy has not been sustained Acceptance of the precepts of tumour immunology continues but these disappointing observations had led to increasing scrutiny of certain aspects The purpose of this chapter is to review the principles which underly tumour immunology and immunotherapy so that the more detailed studies that follow can be considered in perspective TUMOUR ANTIGENS Chapter 2 For a tumour to initiate an immunological response it must possess distinctive antigens Much of the early work in tumour immunity was confused because it was not appreciated that tumours like other tissues exhibit transplantation antigens Only when syngeneic tumours are used can tumour antigens alone be studied and it was the introduction of inbred mouse strains which allowed Foley in 1953 to produce the first evidence for specific antigenicity of experimental tumours Demonstration of these antigens requires that pretreatment with syngeneic tumour will influence the growth of a subsequent challenge with the same neoplastic cells
